The IGC's investigation has been primarily conducted by four core individuals from both the investigations and audit divisions, and supported by other individuals.

The IGC has conducted 29 separate interviews of both licensees and former licensees. Three individuals declined requested interviews by the IGC, this includes individuals that have previously been or currently are licensed by the IGC. The scope of the review covers financial transactions, ownership transfers, contracts, failures to disclose, improper utilization of funds, improper accounting practices, failure to act within the occupational licensure parameters, ex parte communications and other actions and situations falling outside of the good moral character and integrity standards detailed throughout Indiana statutes and regulations.
